

“ As an innovative infrastructure partner and flexible, efficient service provider, upc cablecom has been a skilled mover in providing customised solutions for the Canton of Jura’s public administration. This partnership can surely serve as a model for all public-private sector partnerships. ”

Matthieu Lachat, Information Service Director, Republic and Canton of the Jura

Public institutions owe it to their customers to provide an effective, efficient service. The state of Jura, the youngest of the Swiss cantons, is a firm believer in this, and intends to maintain its dynamism by rising to these new challenges. It regards information management as strategic, with a strong added value in the evolutionary services it provides to its partners. The information service endorses and implements this strategy, relying on modern technologies designed for current and future requirements. Within this context, it relies on its partner, upc cablecom to guarantee efficient communications with its 1,500 users at around 80 locations throughout the canton. To this end, upc cablecom has made a major contribution to the Canton of Jura by developing a fibre optic network, and has been providing the administration with quality, local services for a decade.
